SAWBONES WILL PLAY SAWBONES

Two Local Medical Colleges in Annual Football Contest
To-Morrow.
To-morrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock there will be staged at Broad Street Park one of the most interesting football events of the season. The eleven of the Medical College of Virginia and the University College of Medicine will be engaged in their annual gridiron struggle. Both teams announce that they are prepared. The student bodies of the two schools will be out in force, and with them will come the alumni, many of whom have grown gray in the profession.
Captain Seymour, of the new school, which is popularly considered to have the weaker team, says that he will spring a surprise or two. He does not forecast victory, but he does believe that his men have a fighting chance to win. The team has been practicing hard, and many new plays have been evolved. Altogether the game should prove interesting. Certain it is that it will be hard fought.

The Virginians and the Cook Printing Company teams met last night and fought a hard battle, the latter winning.

"The Girl of the Golden West."
Henry W. Savage is the one theatrical and musical producer in America who is not averted by a big undertaking. When he found that to properly represent Puccini's grand opera, "The Girl of the Golden West," in English, it would require a trainload of scenery and effects, he did not falter, but promptly issued the order for the train. So when this great organization is seen here at the Academy Monday, matinee and night, the production will be in every way as complete and in some ways superior to that made by the Metropolitan House, New York, last winter. That production, it will be remembered, set the pace in the matter of grand opera in America. So great was the demand to witness it and hear the glorious strains of Puccini's delicious score that as high as $15 was paid for single orchestra seats. Mr. Savage, as is well known, has been out of the grand opera game for several seasons, confining his activities to musical comedies and the drama, but when he heard the delicious score which Puccini had set down to the Belasco masterpiece, he could not forego another fling at the game.

A few other sporadic attempts have been made to produce grand opera upon the road, but almost always these efforts have met with failure. The outlay is too great for the usual income. Mr. Savage has made his passion for giving his fellow-countrymen grand opera without considering the box office. He has therefore organized for "The Girl of the Golden West" a company so expensive that should every seat for every performance be sold, there would be no dividends. All Europe was secured by him and his agents for his principals, and he has five acts of them, all artists or more.

Owing to the great demand from out of town for seats, Mr. Savage has agreed to play a special matinee on Monday.

START CAMPAIGN FOR NEW BUILDING

Predicts Success.
"The spirit of this meeting is one of construction, and from the enthusiasm and interest I have seen manifested, I am sure that you will have gained your $150,000 within the next two weeks."
"Throughout the South Richmond has become famous for its campaign to raise $200,000 for the Y. M. C. A. Other cities and towns have followed this example and endeavored to display the same civic pride which brought you success a few years ago."
"I judge by this spirit when I express the conviction that the Young Women's Christian Association will meet that of the organization which has been of such a tremendous benefit to the young men of your city."
"Underlying all kindred movements, I have observed, has been a display of marked statesmanship, and this in so many instances has brought about the many successes."

Become World Fact.
Miss Casler opened her remarks with a statement that the faith which had been reposed in the Young Women's Christian Association has been justified. "The Y. W. C. A.," she said, "has become a world-wide movement. Each country now has its headquarters, and the headquarters of the world are in London."
"The Y. W. C. A. is not needed because women and girls are any different than they were 100 years ago, but it is the modern life and the changed industrial conditions which have made it necessary. What is true of this country is true of the world over. The Y. W. C. A. stands for efficiency in womanhood; it helps the mother, the wife, the stenographer, the cook and all women. The present-day world recognizes it as a great institution and recognizes no creed nor social standing."
"The educational work of the association is only one of its strong features. This work is not a duplicate of that of the day and night schools, but a supplement."
"It is not true that Richmond had some kind of adequate place for the proper supervision of the work and play of young women and girls."
"Richmond has already accomplished many things and is now doing many, but not so well as might be on account of the lack of equipment."

Needs in Richmond.
Miss Katherine Hawes, chairman of the young women's committee of One Hundred, was a convincing speaker in advocating the new home for the association. She told of the past and present of the institution and its hope for the future.
After referring to the work of the various departments, she laid stress upon the fact that no Y. W. C. A. can be self-supporting. This is due to the fact that the membership fees are only nominal—$1 a year—and this is brought about in order to afford a girl or young woman the privilege of becoming affiliated with the organization. The National Board has announced that any branch which earns 50 per cent. of what it costs to operate was doing exceptionally well.

Details of Campaign.
Mr. Williams spoke for some time instructing the team concerning what will be expected of them and what to do.
Each of the teams will meet this afternoon at 1 o'clock in the auditorium of the old Y. M. C. A. building, where luncheon will be served and the result of the first day's work announced.
The campaign executive committee is composed of the following members: H. W. Wood, chairman; Thomas P. Bryan, Preston, Cooke, Edmund Studwick, S. H. Hawes, W. S. Rhoads, Preston Cooke, Samuel W. Traversa, A. Heine, Blair, W. D. Duke, E. A. Adams, S. K. McKee, Thomas B. McAdams, C. B. Richardson, Mrs. H. W. Bassett, Mrs. C. P. Walford, Mrs. Scott Parrish, J. Stewart Bryan, Miss Constance MacCorkle, O. A. Hawkins and M. C. Williams, campaign director.
These, each composed of 100 members, divided as follows: Women's committee, young women's committee, citizens' committee and business men's committee.

Personnel of Committees.
Each committee is divided into divisions and companies, with officers as follows:
Women's Committee.—Mrs. J. Scott Parrish, chairman; Mrs. H. W. Bassett, vice-chairman; Miss Constance MacCorkle, secretary. Division 1—Mrs. William Todd, captain; division 2, Mrs. H. W. Todd, captain; division 3, Mrs. Deverly Black, captain; division 4, Mrs. O. J. Sande, captain; division 5, Mrs. Robert Blankenship, captain; division 6, Mrs. S. H. Benize, captain; division 7, Mrs. J. G. Pollard, captain; division 8, Mrs. Carroll Montague, captain; division 9, Mrs. Clarence Cadot, captain; and division 10, Mrs. Joan G. Miller, captain.
Young Women's Committee.—Miss Katherine Hawes, chairman; Miss Irene Headley Ames, secretary. Company A, Mrs. J. W. Robinson, captain; Company B, Miss Lucy Mason, captain; Company C, Mrs. Annes Gover, captain; Company D, Miss W. G. Greenhaw, captain; Company E, Mrs. H. P. Bryan, captain; Company F, Mrs. T. A. Cary, captain; Company G, Mrs. Robert G.

Cabell, captain; Company H, Mrs. Frank Duke, captain; Company I, Mrs. Richard Mosier, captain; and Company K, Mrs. J. F. Ryland, captain.
Citizens' Committee.—Mrs. W. S. Rhoads, chairman; S. H. Hawes, vice-chairman; W. Y. Rothard, secretary. Division 1, Robert Lecky, Jr., captain; Division 2, L. O. Miller, captain; Division 3, James W. Gordon, captain; Division 4, E. C. Laird, captain; Division 5, W. D. Duke, captain; Division 6, N. Courtice Scott, captain; Division 7, Frank W. Duke, captain; Division 8, R. W. Spillman, captain; Division 9, H. W. Hawes, captain; and Division 10, W. Frank Powers, captain.
Business Men's Committee.—John Stewart Bryan, chairman; C. B. Richardson, vice-chairman; E. G. Irving, secretary; Company A, John Garland, captain; Company B, George N. Skipwith, captain; Company C, Dr. C. H. Rudd, captain; Company D, A. M. Gover, captain; Company E, L. C. Adams, captain; Company F, S. T. Tucker, captain; Company G, S. S. Rosendorf, captain; Company H, B. A. Ruffin, captain; Company I, C. B. Richardson, captain; and Company K, A. L. Adams, captain.

Past Achievements.
The Y. W. C. A. was organized in Richmond in 1887, and was known as the Woman's Association. It first had rented rooms in Main Street, and in 1892 secured a home at 709 East Franklin Street, to which an annex was added in 1901. Here it conducted a large boarding home for young women and laid the foundation for all lines of its present work.
In 1909 it affiliated with the National Association, and changed its name to the Young Women's Christian Association.
Last March the old building had become entirely inadequate from every standpoint, and it was sold. Temporary headquarters were opened at 515 and 517 Grace Streets, with the gymnasium department at Fourth and Cary. As the departments are now scattered throughout the city, it has been impossible to accomplish good results, and this has resulted in the whirlwind campaign which will begin this morning and close in twelve days, when it is hoped that $150,000 will have been contributed to aid in the construction of a modern building and properly equip it to meet the needs of present conditions.
It is understood that the association will make an effort to secure the property at the southwestern corner of Third and Franklin Streets, upon which it has a new home, if the campaign results successfully.

Passenger Train Wrecked.
(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Woodstock, Va., November 21.—Passenger train No. 23, leaving Harrisonburg at 2:55 P. M., was wrecked about a mile south of Woodstock at 4:30 this afternoon. The express car stood on end on a thirty-foot embankment and properly equip it to meet the needs of present conditions.

SENIORS AT TRINITY WIN FROM FRESHMEN QUINT
(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Durham, N. C., November 21.—Defeating for the second time the freshmen of Trinity College, the seniors scored a large point towards the class championship of Trinity College tonight. The game, which was snappy and the most interesting yet played, gaining a lead of five points, the freshmen started off in fine shape, scoring three times from the field, but the seniors brought the score 6 to 6 at the end of the first half.

FORMER CONVICT SLASHES NEPHEW

Negro Tells Varying Stories of Intention to Wound Another Party.

In a quarrel, the older man alleges, over a quarter, John Jones, colored, ex-convict, last night slashed his thirteen-year-old nephew, Collin Jones, from spine to left collarbone with a razor, seriously injuring the boy, and then attempted to escape. He was caught and arrested in a neighboring alley by Policemen Johnson and Folkes.
The affray occurred in the home of the boy's mother, 632 North Seventh Street. The older man alleges that the boy stood in the doorway from him, and that another man, Tom Fox, interfered. He stated that he intended to stab Fox, but that his nephew got in the way and received the wound.
But he did not confine himself to this story. The second story was that Fox was paying attention to his sister and that they quarreled. Fox, Jones asserts, started to strike the woman, and Jones interfered. Then Fox threw a lamp at him, and in the darkness he slashed out. He declared that he did not intend to hurt the boy, and says that he has been caring for him since he was released from the penitentiary. Dr. Hulecher, of the city ambulance, was called to attend the boy, and it required thirty stitches to close the wound. Collin's condition is said to be not serious, and he will recover.
John Jones was convicted of shooting and killing his wife, and was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary. He claims he was shot at a man and struck his wife.

SULLY MAKES DENIAL OF COLLUSION CHARGE

Says Pleadings in Equity Suit Did Not Bear Out Hammond

Washington, November 21.—Daniel J. Sully, the one-time cotton king, of New York, testified to-day before Justice Wright that there was no collusion between the suit for $1,500,000 rendered against him against John Hays Hammond, Jr., and others, in the equity proceedings in which Sully was named as co-defendant with Mr. Hammond, brought by Willard D. Doremus and Addison G. Dubois, to set aside a voting trust in the stock of the National Cotton Improvement Company and the General Cotton Securities Company.
At the hearing held some time ago on the equity suit it developed that Sully, a defendant, had admitted all the charges made by the plaintiffs. Attorney John C. Gittings was representing Sully, and he said that a few months later, before those proceedings were terminated, appeared of record for Sully in the damage suit against Mr. Hammond.
This state of the pleadings was called to the attention of the court by Attorney Walker, counsel for the plaintiffs, and Justice Wright directed that testimony be taken to explain what looked like collusion on the part of Mr. Sully.
Mr. Sully emphatically denied any collusion, and stated the suit for damages rendered against him and others was not for the purpose of embarrassing the special ambassador of President Taft to the recent coronation of George V. of England. Mr. Hammond's counsel asked the question, at the same time exhibiting to Mr. Sully certain newspaper clippings containing interviews with this inference.
Willard D. Doremus, one of the plaintiffs, also gave testimony, in refutation to the imputation that collusion existed on the part of Mr. Sully. Attorney Michael W. Sullivan, who filed the separate answer of Sully admitting the allegations of the equity bill, also testified. He denied any collusion on the part of his client.

PIG IS ARRESTED ON BROAD STREET

Spends Night in Police Station. Unlikely He Will Ever Be a Hog.

Ambling his way westward on Broad Street, a little pig—called short for short—was trying to find his way to his home in Henneracker county yesterday afternoon, when two eager-eyed negroes espied him as they slipped carefully from the shining doorway of a boozing saloon. What the first thought were does not concern the police. But, on second thought, they hustled him after a chase of a square and a half. And to catch a pig requires a deal of skill and experience. They led the Thanksgiving hog to the Second Station, and before the desk sergeant loudly proclaimed their honesty and good intentions, and left little piggy behind.
There was nothing else to do with him, so Sergeant Tyler had him placed in one of the cells. There were three prisoners, all white, on the other side. One, whose surname is Jones, spent the night in cursing the police, himself and everybody else. But the little short lay down on the concrete floor, and with a straw in his mouth went fast asleep. Nobody knew his name and nobody knew his owner, so he was not registered on the books. To-day, if the owner does not come forward, an advertisement will be placed in the papers, and that he is to be sold. The little piggy will be auctioned off to the highest bidder. Several police officers stated last night that they would be glad to bid on him, turkeys being rather high, and stuffed with a millionaire's table.

DELEGATES FOR TAFT WILL BE INSTRUCTED

Campaign for Renomination of President Soon Will Take On Organized Proportion. Roosevelt Ghost Causes Uneasiness.

Washington, D. C., November 21.—Taft delegates to the next national convention are to be instructed, riveted and iron bound. That is virtually the decision of the Taft leaders to-day, and it means that within a month the campaign for the renomination of the President will take on organized proportions.
Orders will go out immediately after the meeting of the Republican National Committee here next month, at which the time and place for the next national convention will be fixed, that wherever Taft delegates are elected by the old-time convention system the instructions for the President shall be such that overly-enthusiastic gentlemen may not be swept off their feet by any flanking movement.
The truth is the Taft people see the "R" ghost in the distance. Like the jack-o'-lantern of childhood days, it flits about in the political marshes and bottom lands, a constant source of wonderment and awe, a warning to be careful and step with deliberation.
Of course, the "T. R." bugaboo was expected about this time of the year. So, beginning with the election of President Taft, the Taft people have been according to the political seers to-day. In the next month or two it is to be flaunted in all parts of the country; it will do all sorts of weird dances and the weak-kneed Taft people will have the shivers. Only the stout of heart among the friends of the President will remain tranquil through it all.
Up and down, like the temperature, the bugaboo will go, one time almost disappearing, and the next coming so close as to stir the onlooker with peculiar feelings.

Will Not Take Chances.
But the Taft managers will take no chances in the next convention. They are careful survey of the situation convinces them that the great majority of the Republicans of the country want the President for another term, and they do not propose that at the last minute any human business shall rob them of the work they have done. So, beginning with the meeting of the National Committee, which is overwhelmingly for Taft, genuine politics will be played. Hitchcock's old master will give way to the suit of iron, padlocked and the key in the possession of the Taft managers.
The Taft people, too, are to wake up. They have been going easy, satisfied with an improvement in the situation as to the President. But they are now going to meet aggression with aggression, loyalty with loyalty, issue with issue. They are going to fight in the primaries and in the general election. They are going to look for a big rise in Roosevelt stock in the next month or so. The Roosevelt bulls will rush the political stock market, and then the bears will be to be held, and it will be up and down until the "market" steadies along toward convention time, by the manipulators discounting what is to actually happen.

The Taft people to-day called attention to the statement from California that Governor Hiram Johnson, the Taft leader there, has come out for a State-wide primary to select delegates to the national convention. They say this is a distinct acknowledgment of Taft sentiment in the State. Governor Johnson, it is asserted, had everything arranged by which certain delegates in a recent primary should pick the delegates. This scheme caused a row in party politics that a primary is to be held. The Taft people claim that the "R" will get very delegate. The Taft claims are also strong as to North Dakota and other States, where delegates are to be elected early by the primary plan. North Dakota has been regarded as one of the certain La Follette States, but when the President was in the Northwest a short time ago he and his friends heard many encouraging things.
Kota, another alleged insurgent State, has come out flat-footedly for Taft, and will aid in the fight for Taft delegates. Senator Gamble, of South Dakota, has been for Taft for a long time. Senator Crawford, of that State, is out for La Follette, and the State leaders generally are about evenly divided. The fight is to be a hot one, with the Taft people claiming the advantage at this time. Mr. Martin is a man of great influence in the State, highly respected by the people and well able financially to give aid to the Taft campaign.
Close friends of the President to-day expressed confidence that Theodore Roosevelt will not be opposed to Mr. Taft at any stage of the game from now on and probably will come out for him at the proper minute. They say they do not believe he could afford to allow himself to be used against Taft next year, as it would mean the splitting of the Republican party from stem to stern.

Investment a Good One.
With the government offering a subsidy of $25,000 to be paid in ten years, it is clear to my mind that an investment in the Panama Canal is a good one, and if no money can be found for it there must be some influences working against it.
"If there is no conspiracy to defeat the independent lines of steamers, some very strange things have happened, as indicated by the Baker failure."
